HATE CRIME CAMPAIGN Guide for partners

The government is committed to tackling hate crime. Hate crime not only has a harmful effect on its victims by attacking who they are as individuals because of their race, religion, sexual orientation, disability or transgender identity, but also on their families and communities.

The Home Office has launched a new public awareness campaign which aims to educate the general public on what a hate crime is. It will help to increase awareness and understanding of what constitutes a hate crime, as many people think a hate crime is just about race and religion or physical violence. There are however many types of offences which often people, including victims, do not recognise as criminal. This includes: online, verbal abuse, as well as against people for their sexual orientation, transgender identity and disability.

Campaign advertising will run across England and Wales on Video on Demand (such as ITV player and All4), social media channels (Twitter and Facebook) and posters which will be in public places at potential points of incidents where hate crime happens e.g. bus stops, tube panels, phone kiosks and tram panels.

All campaign advertising will signpost a new page on GOV.UK where members of the public can find out more about hate crime. The aim of the campaign is to raise awareness and understanding of what constitutes a hate crime. We will also be signposting organisations which provide support to victims and witnesses on the website such as Tell MAMA, Community Security Trust, Galop and disability charities as well as True Vision.

The campaign was developed working closely with the Independent Advisory Group on hate crime and the Crown Prosecution Service, who helped to ensure what we depict in the adverts are prosecutable hate crimes. We are translating this Partner Pack into Welsh – if you would like a copy of the Welsh pack please email HateCrimeCampaign@homeoffice.gov.uk. Welsh versions of the posters are already available in the campaign assets section in this pack.

The Home Office will promote the campaign on our Twitter, Facebook and Instagram channels. Please help support the campaign by following us and retweeting and sharing our posts.
